

COUNTY AND CITY PROBE DEATH OF BUTCHER

Today

GIN, SIN, DEATH
CHILE CAN TEACH US
THE MOST USEFUL AGE
A WISE KING

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Syndicate, Inc.)

Prohibition campaigners will tour 260 cities, to "resell" prohibition to the country.

In New York and Chicago, it would be a good idea for these salesmen to wear bullet-proof vests. To attract crowds they might employ "rose harmony" quartet, including one bootlegger, one racketeer, one all around gangster, and one "horrible example."

The horrible example would be the citizen who thought that you could make men temperate over night by law.

A tabloid newspaper finds a striking news headline. It reads: "Gin, sin and murder."

A young girl, Catherine Cronin, with good religious bringing up, was invited to one of the modern "gin parties." The girl drank much prohibition gin, and was not responsible for her actions. A "petty gangster" took her to his apartment, and there she was strangled to death.

Gentlemen about to "resell" prohibition to the United States" might start with the mother of that girl.

Our government might send a commission to Chile to report on Chile's experience with airplanes.

Rebellious sailors took possession of Chile's navy. The government sent a tiny but loyal air fleet after them with bombs. Some sailors jumped overboard, others held up their hands and quit. That mutiny is over, airplanes were too much for floating ships, and Chile announces: "An increased air budget as the navy surrenders to bombers."

Our government might divert to airplane building some of the millions now thrown away on floating targets called battleships.

The census bureau reports more old and fewer young people than 10 years ago. At present 47,698,991 are under 19 years, 36,152,869 are between 25 and 44 years of age, called "the most useful years." Fortunately for those older, some are found useful long after 44, for instance, Goethe, who finished the second part of Faust at 72. Voltaire, Michelangelo and Titian, who did work after 80, and Von Moltke, Pope Leo and Gladstone, in their prime of usefulness past 80. A cabbage is most useful at three months, and oak tree, later.

King George of England, of his own accord, contributes $250,000 a year, from his "civil list," to help British finances. His wife, Queen Mary, and their son, the Prince of Wales, contribute in proportion.

It is to be remembered that the king's income, amounting to some $3,000,000, is not a present from the British people. It is paid to the royal family, in return for the surrender of the Crown estates that belonged to the royal family as much as their holdings in New York belong to the Astor family.

The British nation gets, from the surrendered property of the king, a bigger income than it now pays him.

King George and his advisors are wise. That is why he is still on the throne.

PACIFIC COAST ASTIR TO GREET ORIENT FLIERS

Aviation Enthusiasts, On Shore and At Sea,
Scanning Skies

40 HOURS ELAPSE
IN HOP SCHEDULE

Ships, Radio Stations On Alert for Word From Two Aviators

(By Associated Press)
SEATTLE, Sept. 9.—Afloat and ashore from Alaska to Puget sound, mariners, aviators, and flying enthusiasts, scanned the western horizon today for some trace of the trans-Pacific airplane of Don Moyle and Cecil A. Allen.

There had been no word from the fliers up to 5 a. m., Pacific standard time (8 a. m., Salem time) more than 40 hours after their take-off from Samushiro Beach, Japan, on a projected 4,465-mile flight to Seattle.

500 Miles From Goal Assuming that the adventurers had encountered no ill luck and had progressed according to schedule, they were some 400 or 500 miles from their destination at that hour.

Although not a word had been received as to their progress since they were sighted off Japan 70 minutes after their take-off, there was little apprehension. The deadline—the hour for their arrival—was drawing near, however. They had expected to reach Seattle in 44 hours or a little more.

Field lights and beacons were turned skyward from Boeing field, ships and radio stations from the Aleutian islands to Seattle were on the alert, eager to witness the latter phase of what started out to be the first non-stop airplane flight across the Pacific's breadth.

Astir at Dawn
Interested citizens began to stir here at dawn a few had arrived at the air field soon after midnight, determined to miss nothing in the event Moyle and Allen sailed in ahead of schedule.

Weather reports had indicated favorable flying conditions over the latter part of their route.

Knowing Moyle and Allen had enough gasoline to remain in the air 47 hours, or until 2:30 p. m.
Eastern standard time, the early comers did not voice any anxiety for their safety.

Files Damage Suit For Bicycle Rider

LISBON, Sept. 9.—A $10,000 damage action has been filed in court here by Harry Wooley, a minor, through his next friend, his mother, against James Blake of Garden-dale addition, East Liverpool.
The petition declares that the plaintiff was riding a bicycle to West Eighth street, East Liverpool, the evening of June 14, last, when Blake turned his machine out of

Convict Slain as Utah Jail Break is Foiled

Chums of 60 Years Ago Together Again
In Chance Meeting

(By Associated Press)
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Sept.
9.—One convict was killed in an attempted break at the Utah state penitentiary this morning which was frustrated by the refusal of Deputy Warden Wilford E. Giles to obey orders of a dozen prisoners who held him captive.

Louis Deathridge, serving a robbery sentence, was shot down by L. W. McTavish, a guard in a wall tower, as he was scaling a rope ladder attached to an iron hook which he had thrown over the top. Deathridge's body was dragged by a convict into a cell house where the mutinous prisoners gathered.

The deputy warden was released after Warden R. E. Davis, braving the rioters, went into the cell house and persuaded them to free his assistant.

Senator's Son and Sweetheart Elope

FAIRMONT, W. VA., Sept. 9.—
The story of how he eloped to Cumberland, Md., with the 16-year-old daughter of a Fairmont metal worker, was told to a society dinner here last night by John Champ Neely, 17, youngest son of United States Senator M. M. Neely.

Young Neely called at a local newspaper office and announced that he and Mary Kathryn Faust, a classmate in Fairmont high school, had motored to Cumberland August 1, and were married by Rev. W. A. Eisenberger, at the First Presbyterian parsonage.

"Aren't you Senator Neely's son?" the young man was asked.
"Yes," he replied, with a smile,
"but you needn't mention that."

Senator Neely said today he had learned of his son's marriage only yesterday. He declined to comment further.

The young couple, who are seniors in high school, plan to continue their studies. They are making their home with the bride's father, Henry Faust.

Young Neely recently won a West Virginia oratorical championship.

town district.

HOOVER LAUDS U. S. RED CROSS ON ANNIVERSARY

Founding of First Chapter at Dansville, N. Y.,
Is Celebrated

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO CLARA BARTON

President Speaks From White House In National Broadcast

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—President Hoover turned aside from government business today to pay tribute to the Red Cross as a part of the celebration of the foundation of its first chapter at Dansville, New York, fifty years ago, by Clara Barton.

Speaking over a nation wide radio hookup from the cabinet room of the White House executive offices, Mr. Hoover said the organization "proves the ability of democracy to create from the people themselves the agencies for their service."

The Dansville chapter, known as the Clara Barton chapter number one, was organized by Miss Barton herself in 1881. Of that the president said:

A Fitting Memorial
"The fifty years which have passed since that pioneer beginning have written a chapter in the world history of human suffering which is a fitting memorial to Miss Barton and a proud tradition to her countrymen."

The text of the President's remarks follows:

"The law provides that the chief executive of the nation shall also be president of the American National Red Cross. This fact adds to the sense of personal pleasure in the privilege which I have today of greeting by the radio those who have assembled at Dansville, New York, to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Clara Barton chapter, number one, the first Red Cross chapter in America. This chapter has the distinction of being organized by Clara Barton herself in 1881. It is a great distinction which your chapter enjoys both for the association with Miss Barton and as the beginning of one of the most beneficent institutions of our history.

"The beginnings of human enterprises derive their significance from the service which time proves their ability to perform for humanity.
The nation joins in your celebrations because of the success of the great, humanitarian agency which sprang from the mind of Clara Barton and the spirit of your community.

MAZER'S PAROLE IS UP TO STATE

Stark Judge Recommends
Freedom For Mellet
Case Prisoner

CANTON, O., Sept. 9.—Fulfilling a promise made in 1927 when the prisoner turned state's evidence in the trials of the slayers of Don R.
Mellet, Canton publisher, Judge Henry W. Harter, Jr., today recommended to the state board of pardons the parole of Louis Mazer, one of the alleged conspirators in the Mellet slaying. Judge Harter was prosecuting attorney in 1927.

Mazer, the first to be formally charged with murder in the Mellet investigation, was permitted to plead to a manslaughter charge and was sentenced from five to 20 years in Ohio penitentiary. He will become eligible for parole on June 13, 1932.

It was largely through Mazer's testimony that the state was able to convict Floyd Streifenberger, former policeman, now serving a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary.

Edison Prefers Oxygen From Auto Rides--Not From Tanks

"Slowly and Definitely Failing," Opinion Of
His Physician

(By Associated Press)
WEST ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 9.— Despite the opinion of his physician that he is slowly and definitely failing, Thomas A. Edison insists upon getting his oxygen in daily automobile rides and has firmly refused to take any from the tank which is kept in his room.

Dr. Hubert S. Howe, the inventor's personal physician, believes there is no reason for immediate concern.

"When I say that Mr. Edison is slowly and definitely failing," Dr.
Howe explained, "I do not necessarily mean that he cannot live, he might surprise us."
Mr. Edison, who suffered a col-

Wood Weeps; Denies Trickery to Defeat Briton

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, Sept. 9.—Gar
Wood, pilot of Miss America IX in the Harnsworth trophy races, today refuted as "misunderstanding" statements attributed to him Monday to the effect that he had deliberately drawn Kaye Don, British challenger in Miss England II, over the starting line, causing disqualification of both boats.

Deeply affected by comment which followed the second heat of the race on Monday, in which Wood and Don were disqualified for beating the start-er's gun, Wood said the only thing he had in mind was to "beat Don over the line."

Chance to Keep Lead
"We wanted to get over first" he said, "I had ridden in Don's Nash for 30 miles Sunday afternoon, and I knew what it was like. We felt if we got away first, we'd have a chance to keep the lead."

Wood said that he instructed his mechanic, Orin Johnson, who handles the throttle, to "watch Don and beat him over the line, at any cost." When they saw Don make a start for the line, he said, they speeded up the boat and passed him behind before the starting line was reached.

"It was this earnest desire on Don's part to get the lead and our determination that he would not get the jump that caused this unfortunate mix-up," Wood said.

Wood wept as he discussed the statements attributed to him after the race on Monday, to the effect that he had tricked Don into beating the gun.

Talks With London
"I've been racing for years," he said, "and we've done the best we could to carry the American flag on our boats in a sportsmanlike way. I don't know how this misunderstanding can be rectified. I've just talked with London over the telephone and they don't seem to understand at all what happened over here. It doesn't seem that any amount of explanation will get it straightened out."

Reiterating his statement that press reports had placed a wrong impression on the matter, Wood broke down as he terminated the discussion, and said he "couldn't talk about it any more."

TELLS OF LIFE AT PLATTSBURG

Walter Deming Discusses Army Training In Talk At Rotary Club Meeting

Walter Deming, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Deming, told of his experiences at the Plattsburg camp in northern part of New York state in a talk before Rotary club members Tuesday.

Walter was a member of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, composed of college and prep school students. The military training is given by regular army officers and is similar to that received by young men in preparation for the World war.

The speaker explained the routine of the camp, not overlooking the amusing incidents. He said his experience taught him and all the boys at camp the horrors of war and made them all hope for commenced peace. However, he added that they also were impressed with the necessity for having young men trained to meet any emergency that might confront their country.

Next Monday night the Rotarians will go to Columbiana for a joint meeting with the club there in honor of the annual visit of their district governor, Salem Rotarians will meet at the Memorial building at 6 p. m. to go in a group.

PLANT PAYROLLS IN AUGUST SHOW DECIDED GROWTH

Approximately $200,000 Is Paid Workers; Orders
Are Released

Payrolls at Salem industrial plants, totalling approximately $200,000 during month of August, were almost 50 percent greater than in August, 1930, indicating upward progress in the city's economic situation with possibilities for continued betterment in future months.
This was revealed today in a survey of various industrial and business interests of the municipality.

August of 1930, the survey shows, produced but little activity in plants here. Shops here as a general rule marked time awaiting economic developments.

During last month, however, more orders were being released at the various plants and more men were being provided employment, according to industrial leaders.

Observers of business here see in the month of August a barometer of business conditions.

Of the $200,000 paid to workers last month, a certain amount of more than small proportions went to many who had previously lacked employment.

The greatest part of the money represented in the payrolls is paid out by workers in Salem interests.
Advantages of trading at home are being emphasized and both they and the city are benefiting.

McDonald Presents Economy Measure

LONDON, N. Sept. 9.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, getting down to the business of forcing his economy program through parliament, today presented to the house of commons a "national economy bill" which would empower the cabinet to govern by orders in council issued by the king without the sanction of parliament.

He explained none of its provisions, and the house passed it on the formal first reading. On Friday it will reach the debate stage and the Labor party will marshal its strongest opposition.

Stanley Baldwin, as a leader of the government in the house and the prime minister's right hand man, then proposed resolutions which would give the government additional emergency powers, enabling it to monopolize all the rest of the session to the exclusion of private members' bills under the so-called ten-minute debate rule.

His resolutions also would provide for disposal of the necessary budget discussion by midnight tomorrow in the committee of ways and means.

Seven Are Burned As Truck Blazes

XENIA, O., Sept. 9.—Seven employees of the Xenia division of the Dayton Power and Light Co., were burned severely late yesterday when a truck in which they were returning from work burst into flames in the Jamestown pike, east of here.
William Rachford, 23, is in a local hospital in a critical condition, the others were given first aid treatment and dismissed. It is believed that several cans of paint remover in the truck caught fire.

FOOTBALL

There will be little thought and less talk about over-emphasis of high school and collegiate football from now until most schools end their playing schedules early next November. Coaches and players will be too busy preparing to win games, and spectators will be too engrossed in the colorful spectacles that football provides to worry about the possible effects of their activity.

Football, as it is played in the United States, is distinctly an American game, and American common sense eventually will get it on a rational basis. If it really has been emphasized in some colleges and high schools to the detriment of the student body, and there is pretty general agreement to that effect, it has been because of the extraordinary attractiveness of the game—not because of any inherent inability of American people to keep student athletics on an amateur basis. No other game in the world has offered the spectacular possibilities of well-played American rugby, and America has made the most of them.

The football reason, though necessarily brief, is the annual point in amateur sports. Tens of thousands of young men play football; hundreds of thousands enjoy watching them. A little over-emphasis and the attendant fuss and bother thereto is little enough to pay for the inestimable fun derived.
And with the first kick-off in the important games but a few days distant over-emphasis will receive somewhat less attention than a country cousin.

WILLING, BUT NOT CERTAIN

Dino Grandi, Italy's foreign minister, suggests an immediate armistice truce among all countries which will participate in the disarmament conference at Geneva next February.

If the world were as ready for disarmament as advocates of disarmament wish it were, Foreign Minister Grandi's suggestion would be caught up so fast it would make him dizzy. He will not be made dizzy, however, nor will the disarmament conference be approached with anything but suspicion and misgivings by the nations participating in it. They will go on building new ships, airplanes, guns and fortresses right through the conference and until such a time as disarmament means more than talk. They can't afford to take chances.

This does not mean that the world is not sick to death of war and the dead hand it lays on the generations that pay for it. It does mean that, in the presence of the world's most serious problem, mankind falls short of being able to find a solution. Nations are willing to effect disarmament but they are uncertain as to methods. They are willing to do away with the depression, too, but they don't know how to go about it.

What Others Say

STABILIZATION OF EMPLOY-MENT

Chairman Gifford and his associates, charged by President Hoover with the extremely complex task of guiding the organization of voluntary unemployment relief throughout the country, also that of promoting stabilization of industry and reduction of unemployment, commend to business men generally the so-called California preparedness plan, evolved and sponsored by the chamber of commerce of that state. It is not strictly speaking, a novel plan, for some of its features have been tried with success elsewhere and others have been under discussion for a considerable time. But it combines effectively several distinct and important elements, and therein lies its relative novelty.

Under the plan, employers of labor agree, so far as possible to guarantee continuous work throughout the year, thus removing the fear of sudden loss of jobs and wages. Wherever it is necessary, employment is staggered, or, if that device is found to be inexpedient, rotation of employment is substituted. The effort is, of course, to distribute available work among as large a number of employees as possible. Vacations are rearranged and extra vacation time without pay is granted to those who desire it and can afford the luxury.

The plan contemplates also intensive study of markets, past sales, cooperation with dealers, advertising campaigns and customer preferences. If demand does not warrant full-time production, time and labor are devoted to repairing, cleaning and overhauling machinery and equipment.

Hundreds of California employers have approved the plan, and put it in operation. It improves the morale of workers and results in elimination of waste. It even increases the actual demand for goods, because it reduces costs of production and arouses the interest and cooperation of the consulting public.

Mr. Gifford does well to ask that the California plan be given consideration by employers of labor in other states.—Chicago News.

CLARENCE WRIGHT, Owner

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Anyway, the midget market is booming. Not since Barnum presented General Tom Thumb, has there been such a demand in the amusement world for "the strange little people." Few midget actors are at liberty and circuses find such performers have increased drawing power this year.

Movie temples, presenting midget acts with feature films, report them a sure fire draw. For many years midgets were offered merely as human freaks by side shows, but today they are singing, dancing and portraying boisterous comedy as well as dramatic roles.

The majority of midgets come from the mountainous areas of middle Europe, chiefly Austria and Germany. Science advances a theory that the biological reason for their slightness is due to defective thyroid glands in their parents. But science is not certain. It rarely is.

Anyway, it is discovered that sympathy in most instances, is wasted on midgets. Few who would exchange places with normally developed men and women. Rather do they glory in their diminutiveness.
Furthermore they are surprisingly healthy and happy. And invariably thrifty.

While the giant is conscious of his size the midget seldom is. He has very little timidity about appearing in public nor does he mind being stared at. Instincts productive of matrimony are minimized but when midgets marry they are often parents of fully proportioned children.

A California college fullback is the reputed son of midget parents.
The midget is often testy. He does not particularly care for the term midget—although it is the name used in medical books and other treatises on the subject. He prefers to be called a Lilliputian.

I am told, too that Lilliputians are heavy users of tobacco and that it does not affect them as the average smoker. A theatrical manager tells of a midget in one of his companies who smoked a dozen or more fiery black cigars a day with a pipe between times. He weighs but 49 pounds.

Contrariwise, midgets are highly susceptible to the punch in alcohol and rarely touch intoxicants. Several years ago a midget suddenly appeared at the roaring corner of 42d and 10th avenue and began to direct traffic. Such a crowd collected a policeman took him to the

GUARD AGAINST QUINSY

I'm often asked, "What is a quinsy sore throat?"

Quinsy sore throat occurs most frequently in the early Spring and late Fall. It is a common, and often serious disease. The condition is exceedingly painful and usually causes great discomfort and alarm to one suffering from it.

Quinsy sore throat is really an abscess of the throat. This abscess occurs as a result of an infection in the tonsil. As a rule, it affects one side only. The pain is on the side involved.

The disease frequently follows a severe attack of tonsillitis—inflammation of the tonsils. The acute symptoms subside and leave behind a one-sided pain due to the resulting abscess of the tonsil. Not every case of tonsillitis is followed by a quinsy sore throat, however.

Some persons appear to be much more susceptible to this complication than others. This is difficult to explain, as it is to explain why one person may get boils and another does not.

Unfortunately, if a person has one attack of quinsy sore throat he will probably have another. There the secret which explains why two may be five or six attacks or even more unless the tonsils are removed.

In a severe attack, the victim is unable to swallow solid food and even complains of pain when swallowing liquids. As a result of this, the patient suffers from lack of food and soon finds himself in a weak condition. There are loss of weight and strength and with the high fever, the patient is really sick.

He may hold his hand to his ear when he swallows. Indeed, ear-ache with quinsy is very common. This sort of pain is spoken of as "referred pain." The ear and throat possess a complicated network of nerves and it is not surprising that the pain shoots everywhere.

It may even be in the knees and ankles. This is due to the poison which are absorbed from the abscess in the throat. Such patients require careful attention to prevent damage to the heart. In rare cases the abscess in the throat may affect the kidneys and even produce Bright's disease.

If the abscess does not respond to simple treatment, it is imperative that it be opened as soon as possible. It is wrong to wait until a "quinsy" breaks. That was the old attitude. It may seem cruel to open such an abscess, but to do so prevents much unnecessary suffering and further trouble.

SYNOPSIS

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and suicide of her grandfather, has a struggle to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation. The estate of the Winsteeds adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, loves Sally, but Sally is in love with Lowndes Jennings. Lowndes jilts Sally for the wealthy Gertrude Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she doesn't love him. Sally becomes Sam's wife in name only and Sam gives Oakleigh back to her as a wedding present. Sam goes abroad and tells Sally she can sue him for her freedom. After Sam leaves, Sally discovers that Henry Winstead had not taken advantage of her grandfather, as she believed, but had tried to save him.

INSTANT 31

LEARNING THE BUSINESS
They paced sedately up and down the garden paths together. Sally was still agitated, and Henry talked, or was silent, companionably. After a while—because he thought that she would care to hear—he began to talk about the thing ever nearest his heart: his son. How had she ever thought this man cold, dry, sinister, a mere money grubber? She wondered. She liked to hear him talk of Sam. She wanted to hear his talk of Sam. She found herself listening avidly—even asking questions.

Before she went to her room for the night she slipped into Sam's room for a moment's silent communion with Katie's picture. "I know now why you cared so much for Henry, Sam's mother," she told the picture. "I'm going to care a great deal for your Henry, too!" But although she had gained a tender and understanding companionship, and she and her new found father were much together, there was so little for her to do, the house was so competently run by the trained servants, that the days went slowly. They were empty and purposeless to her. Restlessness, a pained sense of inutility, oppressed her. She couldn't seem to shake it off.

The cabin near Oakleigh gates had been closed since before her marriage; and though she had no wish to open the closed windows, she sighed. Moses cared now for the flowers before it that a young man in khaki had planned, to attract the passing eye, he had told her. O, that her days were as purposeful now as they had been then! She had discovered in herself an aptitude for business. In that little shop she had been so alert, there had been so many real things to do! And time hung so heavily on her hands now—she had too much time to think. Sam had chosen his own work, had flung himself into it with a sort of radiant vigor, a splendid zest. Sam hadn't been at all sorry for her because she had had to work. He had praised her because she could do it so well. She stopped short, struck by a sudden thought.

The next morning Mr. Manager Joe Dixon was visited in his private office by a purposeful Mrs. Sam Winstead, very trim, very pretty, very healthy. He shook hands with her heartily. Why hadn't she been to see Helen recently? What's that? Restless? She? What about? "That's what I've come to see you about."

"Me? Why, what can I do about it?" asked Joe doubtfully. "Maybe you can cure it. By giving me a job, said Sally. "Please, Joe, don't laugh. I'm in dead earnest, in dreadful earnest, Joe. I want you to find me some sort of a job."

"She wants me to find her something to do," Joe Dixon was telling his wife about Sally's demand that night. "Find it for her, then," said Helen placidly.

They discussed the question at length. Plainly, something was wrong, though they couldn't guess what.

"Well, maybe I could make her a sort of private secretary," Joe hinted, in response to a persistent suggestion from Helen. "though I don't need and don't want one. I am afraid she will be more of a bother than a help to me."

"Make her your private secretary, Joe," advised Helen. "I don't think she will prove a bother—I really think she'll prove a help."

"I ought to charge it up against Sam, that's what I should do," said Joe resentfully. "What am I to tell him, anyhow?"

"I don't see that you need tell him anything, I personally, protest against your telling Sam anything about it."

Joe stared at her, too surprised to speak.

"Making Sally your private secretary won't hurt the business any," said Helen emphatically. "Anyhow, he isn't here, and what he doesn't know won't hurt him," she finished.

It was a growing business, and she had her hands full from start, for Joe Dixon didn't spare her. He himself worked like a mule and he kept the noses of all his employees to the grindstone. His people earned their salaries. The extent of the business, its efficiency under its trained men, astonished Sally. But then, she reflected, Sam wouldn't engage in anything that wasn't efficient and successful.

Henry Winstead was astonished when she told him of her decision. He protested against it. But when Sally explained that she couldn't be satisfied as things were, that she hadn't enough to do—so why shouldn't she be allowed to satisfy herself in her own way? He looked at her a long time in silence and finally agreed to let her do as she pleased.

"You know, father, I got a good taste of work when I ran that little stand of mine. Sam told me I had an aptitude for business, and really I do think I have. It spoiled me—for other things. I can't just play about, you must know I can not. Probably I'd have liked it well enough if I hadn't been forced to learn the other thing. Anyhow now it would bore me to distraction to have to play around and be idle."

—and so don't look so doubtful, because I'll have plenty of time to go about with you on Sundays and holidays. And we can dine and breakfast together, as usual."

As Helen Dixon had predicted, Sally proved a help to Joe. She was highly intelligent, she was on her mettle. Her days no longer hung fire. She had work which occupied her hands and exercised her mind.

"She's all right," Joe reported to Helen, relievedly. "And she seems satisfied. She's learning the business."

She was. She began to ride over the estate, the extent of which surprised her. At night now, she was studying. Cows, chickens, silos, brooder, foods, were no longer mere words to the earnest young woman—they were living realities, working actualities. Joe Dixon delighted to teach so willing and intelligent a pupil. She was able now to take the reception of visitors off his busy shoulders.

A Scotch gardener, with a corps of assistants, was in charge of the gardens, and the greenhouses flourished under his care. One day he came to ask some service from Joe, who happened to be out at the moment, leaving Sally in charge. Sam's hobby had been roses, she remembered.

Now, McFarland was altogether interested in his work and in nothing else. He lived, ate, slept, dreamed roses. He was willingly articulate only when he could talk roses with intelligent listeners, and here was an intelligent listener. Would Mr. McFarland let her come to his greenhouses, Sally wondered?

Mr. McFarland said he'd be delighted to have the bonny young lady.

"I'm going to learn something about roses from Mr. McFarland," she announced to Joe. "We'll have to arrange our office hours, Joe."

She had proved herself an efficient worker. Now she wanted to learn rose growing! McFarland was going to be her instructor! O, well! Sam had a craze for roses himself. Of a sudden, Joe whistled.

Although she was less restless because her days were now crammed with work, Sally was still troubled, uneasy, anxious. What was she going to do? How was this thing to end? She didn't know. She couldn't tell. There was no hint of Sam's return. He was waiting for her to act—and she did nothing. She made no move. How could she, when Henry Winstead loved and trusted her? She could not bring herself to say to him: "Good-bye—I am going to leave you, Mr. Winstead!" How could she leave him, to whom she was so dear, who was so dear to her? Sam hadn't counted on that! He had counted altogether on Sally Rutherford's dislike of Henry Winstead.

But Sally Winstead knew Henry now. Gradually that shy, quiet, kindly man had taken grandpapa's place. She was no longer alone, no longer dismayed and friendless. She had a father who was profoundly interested in all that concerned her, who was tenderness itself. With what affection he called her "daughter!" What step could she take, what could she do, that would not hurt him? If she left Winstead, if she proceeded against Sam—as Sam expected her to do—it would break Henry's heart.

Lowndes Jennings still ran his brokerage business in the city, where he and his young wife now resided Mrs. Reinert had taken up her quarters in a hotel there, and she and her daughter entertained lavishly. Sally and Helen Dixon had once or twice attended their receptions, and once, Mr. Reinert having come down suddenly, Sally and her father-in-law had been his dinner guests. The Jennings were not present that night, greatly to her relief. Henry had been quite lively, for him, and Mrs. Reinert had chattered to her heart's content. Mr. Reinert had talked with Sally, while his wife brought her guns to bear upon Henry.

"I really like Reinert's," Henry said afterward. "But that woman's chatter gives me a headache, and they want us for a large party soon, she told me. Daughter, I don't believe I can stand it!"

"We'll send regrets, then, father," she said.

But Lowndes, who had hoped to see Sally one of the guests, was bitterly disappointed. He dared not show his disappointment, but he was consumed with eagerness to see her. He could not accept her word that she no longer cared for him. Once he had had to appear in a most unlovely light to her, he realized—but fate had been too strong for him, he couldn't help himself. He felt that he had been the prime cause of her marriage to Winstead and that thought ate into his mind like corroding acid. She felt that she must be loyal to Winstead, but it was not possible that she could love Lowndes. Only let her reassure Lowndes that her heart was still irrevocably his, that she still loved him even as he loved her! Somehow, after that, things must come right. Anyhow, they would know that they loved each other!

NEW YORK—Jinx and Toots live in a suit case. Since they were married eight years ago they have travelled more than 100,000 miles. They were childhood sweethearts. To the golfing public Jinx is George on Elm. Toots is his wife, Marcelia. George loves steaks. On tour he has eaten sirloin at fourteen consecutive dinners.

PONCA CITY, OKLA.—Pebblestone hasn't much speed but he is a derby winner. It took him one minute, 15 seconds, to go 75 feet but that was fast enough to win a terrapin race and $3,500 for his owner.

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.—The distaff side of the Fairbanks family has something to brag about now. Mary Pickford went fishing and came back with a 150-pound marlin swordfish and a 175-pound hammerhead shark. She landed them by her own efforts.

ORYSON CITY, N. C.—Perhaps it was a coincidence, but Jarrett Elythe, a young college graduate from Carlisle, has been chosen chief of the eastern tribe of cherokeses, in the first election in which women were permitted to vote. He cannot speak Cherokee.

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND—Not even cold water can dampen the gallantry of M. Venizelos, venerable premier of Greece. During his arguments on Bulgarian war debts, a girl stenographer accidentally tipped a pitcher of water, drenching his white bears. Wringing out his beard he went on talking as if nothing had happened.

M. E. CONFERENCE HEARS REPORTS

Declare Churches "Fundamentally Strong And Prospering"

LAKEVIEW, O., Sept. 9.—Reports declaring for the "fundamentally sound and prospering" condition of its churches were in possession of the Northeast Ohio conference of Methodist Episcopal church today.

The report, made by superintendents of the nine districts, was made before the opening session yesterday, at which about 300 church and 150 lay members attended.

Good conditions were reported as particularly true of the three colleges of the conference—Baldwin, Wallace at Berea, Ohio, Wesleyan at Delaware and Mount Union, at Alliance. All three reported exceptional years with record enrollments.

The report suggested the conference memorialize the episcopacy committee of the general conference to assign Bishop Herbert Welch of the Pittsburgh area, temporary presiding bishop of the conference, to the Cincinnati area as resident bishop.

The Cincinnati residency was made vacant by the death in 1929 of Bishop Theodore S. Henderson.

MONONGAHELA, Pa.—A surf-cyclone, which propels a bather through the water at an 8-mile an hour clip operating on the principle of a bicycle has been perfected and placed in usage here by Marion Zanuch, local inventor. The swimmer lies prone, working with his feet the pedals at the rear of the device which consists of a fish shaped wooden body buoyed up by two vacuum tanks attached to the front. The craft is steered like a sled, with wires leading from a cross-piece which serves as a guide, to the tanks.

BERLIN—The number of German war victims shows a decrease this year for the first time since the war. The total of those, including widows of veterans, who had been in one way or another afflicted increased until last year, when the toll was 840,000. This year it dropped to 838,360.

HOOVER LAUDS U. S. RED CROSS

Founding of First Chapter at Dansville, N. Y., Is Celebrated

chapter in the village of Dansville was the forerunner of 3,500 chapters in existence throughout the United States, enrolling at times of national need as many as twenty million members. In its lifetime the Red Cross has raised and expended nearly a billion of money in the relief of human distress. The national organization has become our national assurance of adequate, prompt and efficient handling of any catastrophe within our borders. It is the flowering of the spiritual impulse to serve the common need. It represents both the common impulse of sympathetic help and the mechanism for its practical expression. It stands as a monument to individual and local initiative. It proves the ability of a democracy to create from the people themselves the agencies for service.

"More than a century has passed since Clara Barton was born. And it may be well said that the institution was not only founded by a noble woman but it has been carried on very largely by the womanhood of our country. The fifty years which have passed since that pioneer beginning have written a chapter in the world-wide relief of human suffering which is a fitting memorial to Miss Barton and a proud tradition to her countrymen.

Women's Interest at Base.
"Women's interest in the prevention of suffering and in ministrations of mercy to those in sickness, peril and need, is the foundation of the Red Cross organization which has been fittingly described as 'the greatest mother of them all.' To Miss Barton, Miss Mabel Boardman, and the many thousands of other devoted women, in all localities of this broad land, the cause of prompt, effective and sympathetic alleviation of suffering and distress owes its debt of gratitude and remembrance. To the men who give their service of whom there is no greater example than Judge Payne—I also pay tribute.

"It is my privilege, on behalf of the nation, to acknowledge the debt, both to the pioneer founders of the organization and to their successors who are carrying on today."

"CLEAR CASE OF MURDER" VIEW

Coroner E. R. Sturgis Expected Here For Inquest Today

has been definitely established as the motive.

Evidence was obtained, authorities said, that the butcher, about 6 ft., 2 in. in height and weighing 175 pounds, had engaged his attackers in a struggle before he was hacked to death. A large meat block had been forced from its position in one corner of the shop and there were other indications of a battle.

Following their visit to the market the investigators inspected Schmidt's body at the O. G. Stark funeral home, East State st., where the inquest will be conducted by Sturgis, Stark and Marion Hannay, his assistant, explained to the officials wounds sustained by the butcher. The man's head was almost severed from his body, they said.

Neck Slashed Twice
Wounds sustained by Schmidt indicated that he had been slashed in the neck twice, once on the right side and again in front, cutting through the windpipe to the base of the tongue. Other wounds were discovered on his left arm, forearm and hand. No other cuts were inflicted on the body, physicians said.

The cut on the left arm and hand added impetus to officials' theory that Schmidt had engaged his attackers in a hand-to-hand battle, sustaining the wound on the hand when he attempted to ward off a knife thrust. The wound was more than three inches long. Other cuts were only slight.

A visit was later made to the Valet Service Shoppe, East State st., which was entered by burglars yesterday morning. Traces were found where an automobile had driven to the shop but police apparently abandoned efforts to link the burglary with Schmidt's murder.

Clarence Frethy, owner of the place, reported today that four suits of clothes, four women's dresses, two overcoats, an automobile robe and three men's hats were stolen by the burglars. The burglary is believed to have occurred about 6 a. m., at least 45 minutes before the slaying in that Schmidt was seen in front of his store at 6:40.

Blood found spattered on the window of the shop is believed by police now to have come from wounds which may have been sustained by the thieves in breaking into the place. Earlier theories advanced by authorities were based on possibilities that the blood had brushed onto the window from the clothes of Schmidt's slayers.

Will Examine Clothing
Clothes worn by Schmidt at his death were taken by Lafferty to Lisbon where they will be given further examination. Two back and side pockets were turned inside out, apparently as the robbers looted his clothing of more than $300 in cash and checks the man is said by his family to have been carrying.

One of the pockets, the inside of which was stained with blood, will be examined for finger prints.

Police Chief Thompson said today that no finger prints have been obtained from either the long butcher knife or meat cleaver found beside the dead man's body by James A. Long, Youngstown truck driver who discovered the body when he walked into the store at 7 a. m. to deliver bread.

Funeral service for Mr. Schmidt will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Stark memorial. Rev. B. E. Rutzky, pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran church, of which Schmidt was a member, will be in charge. Burial will be in Grandview cemetery.

Mrs. Schmidt, her son, George, and daughter, Irene, will be at the funeral home from 7 to 9 tonight to meet friends and relatives.

CONVICT SLAIN AS BREAK FAILS

A dozen convicts surrounded Giles when he entered the cell house and demanded that he produce the warden. When he refused, F. C. Hertel, a convict, ran into the yard and hurled a prison-made bomb to the roof of the lookout tower on the northeast corner of the wall. Its explosion was a signal to other convicts and the riot was on.

McTavish in the northeast tower, fired at Hertel and the convict took cover. Deathridge then was shot down when he made his break for liberty.

Escaping the bonds with which the convicts had tied him, the deputy warden ran into the prison yard in an effort to draw the rioters into the line of the guard's fire. The guards sent a stream of bullets into the cell houses, keeping the convicts inside. Hertel, regarded as the leader of the attempted break, is serving a sentence for assault with a deadly weapon. He recently tried to escape by digging the plaster from the wall of his cell with a needle and has been kept in solitary confinement many times.

Mullins, Hardware Battle To 6-6 Draw In Titular Contest

TIE FOR FIRST PLACE IN LOOP STILL UNBROKEN

Foremen Take Early Lead In First; Hardware Gets 6 In 2nd

SEASON'S LARGEST CROWD AT CONTEST

Two Teams Stage Hectic Fight For Laurels; Win 10 Lose 4

The year's largest audience of baseball fans saw the Salem Hardware and Mullins Foremen's club teams, leaders in the fight for city league softball honors, battle to a 6-6 draw at Centennial park field Tuesday evening. The game was called at the end of the eighth by darkness.

Sharing first place in the circuit with 10 victories and four defeats each, the teams clashed yesterday to break the tie. It was one of the most interesting and thrilling struggle of the season.

Mullins Scores First
Mullins started what appeared to be an early match to triumph in the first frame, connecting with George Early's offerings for three runs. The Foremen gathered in another in the second and held a 4-0 lead. Only for a few minutes, however, as the Hardware, starting a great slugging spree, hit Sam Watkins hard and before the side was retired six runs had crossed the plate.

Robert Campbell and Dale Rafferty each hit safely twice for Mullins while Arnold Seides and Early had two hits for the Hardware. Fitzpatrick's triple and doubles by Early, M. Sartick and French were the only extra base knocks.

Campbell, Dorchek Star
Fielding Campbell and Dorchek, the latter playing his first game after a several weeks absence, were features.

Three Recruit Hurlers Star in Major League Slab Debuts

(By Associated Press)

Three recruit pitchers have made brilliant debuts in the National league in the last few weeks. Jim Mooney, formerly of Bridgeport, came from nowhere to become one of the New York Giants' stars. Monday Van Mungo stepped up from Hartford to pitch a great game for Brooklyn and now Bill Harris, who just came to Pittsburgh from Fort Worth, has joined them in the high places.

Wins Sixth Straight
While Mooney was winning his sixth straight game for the Giants, yesterday, Harris pitched his first for the Pirates and won it by a shutout. He allowed the Cincinnati Reds only five hits in a brilliant duel with Jack Ogden and Benny Frey, and earned a 3 to 0 victory.

Mooney, who has yet to taste defeat in the big league, hurled the Giants to an even break in their doubleheader with Philadelphia. Phil Collins downed the Giants for the second time in a row in the opener, besting Bill Walker, 3 to 1.

Mooney, although hit ten times, was effective in all but one inning of a struggle against Sheriff Blake and scored a run himself in the eighth inning to produce a 4-3 victory.

FRENCH VICTOR IN COURT DUEL

Salem Net Star Annexes County Championship; Beats George Emery

Thomas French, former Salem High basketball and tennis star, is the new Columbiana county tennis champion, winning the crown in finals of the tournament held at the Salem Country club.

French defeated George Emery, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3 and 9-7 in four of the hardest sets played during the tourney. Emery advanced to the finals by defeating Loren Early of East Palestine, 2-6, 6-3 and 6-1 while French won his semi-final match from Bob Hammell, Salem, by 6-1, 6-4, scores.

Walter Hartsack and Tom Moore retained their doubles championship by defeating Wilbur Hailey and Merle Caldwell, 6-1, 4-6, 6-6, 6-2. Semi-final matches brought victories for the champions over Rev. C. A. Roth and son Christian by 6-4, 6-4, scores. Hailey-Caldwell defeated Dana Fieding and Harold Hurst, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, in the other semi-final.

Karl Naumestnik, well-known Austrian athlete and adventurer, is pictured at Dover, England, as he leaped out of his "water shoes" at the conclusion of his nine-hour hike across the English Channel from Cape Gris Nez to Dover. Naumestnik has traveled 2,500 miles altogether on his unique water-skis.

Grove Wins 28th

Another good pitching performance came from Austin Moore of Brooklyn in the remaining National league game. Moore relieved Babe Phelps with the bases full and now out in the first and pitched nine full frames to win 12-6.

The outstanding American league mound performance again was left in the capable left hand of Robert Moses Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics. Grove set Washington down with seven hits and fanned seven to record his 28th victory of the season against three defeats. The final score was 10 to 1.

The defeat left Washington only one game ahead of the New York Yankees, who with Boston, had an off day.

Indians Win Two More
Cleveland continued its spurt by taking two games from the Chicago White Sox to make it six victories in three days. The Indians were out in both games but came through with a late rally against Bob Welland to take the opener 3 to 7 then drove Pat Caraway from the Hill with a five-run rally in the first inning and won the second 6 to 3.

The St. Louis Browns regained the top place in the second division by a half game margin on the strength of two home runs that beat the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 2.

Giants, Yanks Clash In Charity Battle

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—New York city's two major league baseball clubs, the Yankees of the American league and the Giants of the national, clash today for the benefit of the unemployed.

The entire receipts of the game will be devoted to charity, club owners assuming expenses of about $5,000.

Vernon Gomez, the Yankees' leading hurler, was expected to start for the American leaguers while Fred Fitzsimmons probably will fit the assignment for the Giants.

Lisbon Youth Candidate For Varsity Berth At College

BETHANY, W. Va., Sept. 9—Football enthusiasts at Bethany college are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the candidates for the 1931 Bison football team who are scheduled to get down to a program of daily drills today. The men who will make up the backfield which will start against Marshall in the first game on October 3 is a matter of great interest as the veteran material is very limited.

Sam McVeigh, Lisbon, Ohio, quarterback; Dan Pollard, McKeesport, Pa., and Tom George, Connelville, Pa., halfbacks; and Frank Gieskovich, Fredericktown, Pa., fullback are the only members of the 1930 Bethany team who have had any collegiate football experience. All of these men were awarded letters last year.

The starting backfield may be composed of these four men, although some of the freshmen who will enter the college this year are reputed to be able to make strong bids for any and all of these positions.

Regardless of who starts the games the coaches will have to spend a great deal of time with the backfield candidates if they hope to develop a combination that will be able to consistently play first class football against such teams as Marshall, Waynesburg, Muskingum, Grove City and Thiel colleges.

Indiana Coach Bases Hopes on Younger Gridiron Stars

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 9—Almost anything can happen during the football season at Indiana with a squad of 80 men, mostly sophomores from a strong freshman squad of 1930, and with a new coaching staff in the field.

Going no farther afield than the cinder track around the gridiron, Indiana chose its track coach, E. C. Hayes to succeed H. O. "Pat" Page when that worthy departed from his position as head football coach.

Hayes has been coaching Hoosier runners since 1924 when he came here from coaching football at Mississippi A. & M. He will be assisted by A. J. "Butch" Nowack, who captained the University of Illinois eleven in 1928, and was chosen as tackle on numerous "all"-selections. Paul "Pooch" Harrell, hometown backfield star, will assist in training the ballcarriers, as Nowack will pay particular attention to the line. Other assistants are Wally Marks, Chicago captain in 1926, freshman coach, and W. H. Thom, head wrestling coach.

Any chance the "Scrappin' Hoosiers" have of bettering their last season's western conference record of one victory and three defeats apparently lies with younger players who are as yet an unknown quantity.

Thirteen lettermen are returning along with 32 who have seen a few minutes of varsity experience. Among the veterans are Joe Zeller, a guard who was one of the finest linemen in the Big Ten last season, and who is a capable leader; Bernard Dickey, nose end; Vic Dauer, with no high school training, who learned fast enough to catch the winning pass against Purdue last fall; Jack Hansen, end, handicapped last season by an operation; Ambrose Rascher, guard, possessing rugged endurance, and Wm. G. "Piggy" Spanuth, center, who won the prize for the best all-around freshman football two years ago.

Among the newcomers is Ivan Fuqua, former holder of the world's high school 440-yard dash record, who may turn out to be Indiana's backfield speed merchant. Robert Jones, a bulky youth who won the National A. A. U. heavy-weight wrestling championship, is an outstanding fullback candidate.

Ray Dauer, brother of Vic, may press the quarterback aspirants although he, like his brother, lacks high school experience. Adolph Sabick, a good passer, and Halcy Savicki, a good big ball carrier with plenty of nerve, are capable of adding punch and speed to the Hoosier backfield.

Otto Kuss, 215 pounds and 6 feet 3, the biggest man on the squad may fill one of the tackle positions in his first varsity year. Edwin Anglemeyer, all-state high school tackle and Pittsburgh Lyons, colored star, and tackle possibilities.

Indiana's schedule includes four home games with Ohio university, Notre Dame, Ohio State and Purdue and four Big Ten games away from home—Lowa, Chicago, Michigan and Northwestern.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

Cheese Accessories for the Table
Each year more of the several hundred kinds of cheese are edging their way to American tables. Once there were only a few kinds known—our hard American cheese, the Swiss cheese, cream and some of the softer imported cheeses. What with our growing number of travelers who come back with a developed taste for foreign foods like cheese, plus the enterprise of importers, exotic cheeses are no longer restricted to epicures.

At well-stocked markets we can get dozens of varieties—Camembert, Roquefort, Mont d'or, Gruyere, Pont-l'Evêque from France, Liptauer, Harz, Krauter, and Limburger from Germany, Schweizer and Emmentaler from Switzerland, Edams from Holland, Parmesan and Gorgonzola from Italy, Cheddar and Stilton from England—and innumerable others, not forgetting our domestic varieties.

High Nutritive Value
Cheese has twice the nutritive value of the same quantity per pound of meat, and certainly a vast array to choose from. Wherefore the cook who keeps ringing the changes on all cheeses available in local markets doesn't hear the charge of monopoly.

Service of these adds to its palatability, and for this reason an array of accessories is helpful. Quite important are the cheese knives, and lovers of cheese varieties can do with half a dozen of these. Pronged knives for breaking the crumbly kinds, serrated knives for clean cutting, scoop-end knives for pineapple or Edam—are assurances of neat service.

Another two-in-one help is the cheese tray. It consists of an oblong metal base and glass cover. The cheese can then be kept in the refrigerator near other foods, with its own odor carefully insulated so that it doesn't spread. The glass cover is removed when the whole cheese is to be served, and it can be taken to table in the same nicked tray in which it is kept cold.
